FARMER'S FAIR DAUGHTER IN TROUSERETTES DRIVES MILK ROUTE FOR BROTHER IN FRANCE

Ella Lee Tavenner, of Near Devon, Holds It Patriotic Duty

Quits Teaching School to Help Father Solve Problem of Labor

To Miss Ella Lee Tavenner, in her trim olive drab trouserettes and blouse, driving a motor truck and delivering daily several hundred quarts of milk is just good fun.

To her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther M. Tavenner, who own the dairy farm about twenty minutes' walk from Devon, she is a goddess in these days of labor scarcity.

To the brother in France whose place she is trying to fill on the farm, she is a "regular brick."

And the neighbors and patrons—well, that happy face and cheery greeting give them a pleasant thought for the entire day and they know she is doing her bit for Uncle Sam.

Tall and well built, with big brown eyes and dark hair and a quick, boyish smile, the modern milkmaid of Devon has proved a great success.

"Oh, that's my brother," she explained, "enlisted last February and went overseas July 15, in the motor supply division. There were just the two of us children, and when he went it just seemed best for me to come home and help out. I have taught school in Sidney, Mo., the last two years, but I resigned to come back to the farm."

"No, I don't expect to go to France, I think I will help more at home, though I would be glad to go anywhere if I thought I could be of use. Danger doesn't mean anything to me and I love new adventures."

Miss Tavenner attended Berwyn High School and Chester State Normal School.
Last summer, between school terms, she, with other teachers of the city, took a position as railroad operator to supply places left vacant by enlisted men.

"Men are more scarce in the West than here," she said. "The women have been supplied in many positions there for more than a year. I have been surprised at the number of young men left here."

PRICE OF SUGAR GOING UP

The sugar equalization board of the food administration announces that in order to minimize inequalities between old and new prices it will buy sugar at the old price and resell consumers at the new price.

The increase will not be more than a cent a pound and will not take effect immediately. The exact price at which sugar will sell has not been determined.

Despite the fact that the rulings concerning the sale and use of sugar are very definite, many householders do not appear to understand the instructions.
The food administration desires all to bear in mind that the maximum sugar ration for household use is two pounds per person a month.

This means about one ounce a day or about six and two-fifths level teaspoons. All pictures reserved before exhibition. Ask for the theme in your locality obtaining pictures through the STANLEY Booking Corporation.

BARS MAY ATTACK "DRY ZONE" LINE

Some Expected to Seek Safety by Walking
Measurement

AIR-LINE PLAN APPLIED

Wholesalers Must Close Doors, but May Sell Goods Outside of Circle

Some of the Frankford saloonkeepers forced out of business by the establishment of the half-mile dry zones around the Frankford Arsenal will base their fight against the order on the question whether measurement of the area in to be made "as the crow flies," or on the walking distance from the arsenal.

This is the belief of Assistant United States District Attorney Sterrett. Some of the saloonkeepers affected by the order protest they are not within the half-mile area, but this walking distance According to Mr. Sterrett, the Government's survey was made "as the crow flies," while private measurements made by the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association were over the walking distance from the arsenal. The airline measurement, Mr. Sterrett said, would be shorter than the measurement taken by the saloonkeepers.

Mr. Sterrett also announced that, contrary to expectations, the six whole-salers in the dry zone would have to keep their doors closed.

They will still be permitted to do business, however, according to Mr.
Sterrett, by telephone and by solicitors, with their customers outside the dry zone. A delegation of wholesalers called on Mr. Sterrett today and inquired about the legality of brewers and distillers making deliveries to the wholesalers in their district, but he protesting that no deliveries should be made within the zone.

Mr. Sterrett informed the wholesalers that the section of the rules would be waived and that deliveries would be permitted.

Fifteen saloons in the "dry zone" closed at midnight Saturday.

This is the first day under the new law, and many men on their way to work found the customary places of refreshment closed "by order of the Government." Not a single "soak" could be found within the half-mile dry belt prescribed.

Government agents were in the dry district to see that the order was carried out. They were prepared to arrest violators of the ruling immediately.
